Young Volunteer Consultation and Training Development Programme

We are running a twelve week consultation and training development programme for up to 12 people 16 to 25 years old from 18/04/2018 to 06/06/2018 to help us explore and improve what we do.

Outline
As part of our consultation we are looking at what makes good training during our regular 2-hour sessions at our workshop in Hoxton Street on a Wednesday afternoon. The sessions will look at young volunteer training[1] design and trialling[2] from mid April to June. You can come to as many of the sessions as you like, they are divided into 2 x 4 week blocks described below.

Programme

Block A: 4 weeks training design - contributing to designing new training for young people - we would be happy to be referees for future job and university applications and participants receive a signed Ministry of Stories attendance certificate outlining their specific contribution.

Block B: 4 weeks trialling of the training - try out of training participants have been involved in designing - we will provide references, participants will receive a Ministry of Stories attendance certificate and their full name (with permission) will appear in the final report to be included in university and employment applications.

[1] Developing training styles and content appropriate to this age group
[2] Testing the training developed by the group for appeal and efficacy of purpose

Criteria for attendance
16 to 25 years of age with a willingness to participate and make positive contributions. This is a total of 16 hours at 2 hours per session but you can attend as many sessions as you want to, but we do suggest a reasonable level of commitment in terms of your personal development and real life experience of participating in a development process where you could gain new valuable skills for the future.

Registration and attendance
We would very much like a consistent group of people for the 9 weeks but we appreciate that for some people regular attendance may not be possible.
